

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

For providing an optical measuring signal to an optical component to be measured, the spectral density of the optical signal is broadened until relevant 5 non-linear effects in the optical component occur, at most, by combining a plurality of initial optical signals to create the optical signal.